

RESPIRATORY SYSTEM

Breathing is one of the essential biological processes that keeps us alive. The respiratory system is mostly responsible for supplying oxygen to our body and releasing waste gases, like carbon dioxide, back into the air. I chose to illustrate this system because the biological mechanism of respiration seem pretty interesting to me. This helps us understand the lungs, airways, and how air moves in and out. Proper breathing also help humans calm down, meditate, and relieve anxiety.

MT13 (LEC) - GH